

Theo Cawood began his singing career at Eton College where he attended secondary school, when he decided to start taking singing lessons. Within a year, he had joined the Lower Chapel Choir as a first tenor, and then in sixth form he joined the College Chapel Choir. During his time at Eton, Theo was a part of a Capella ensemble Etonality, and performed works such as Verdi's Requiem and Mozart's Mass in C Minor with professional orchestras. Theo now sings as a bass choral scholar at Keble College, Oxford, alongside which he studies Mathematics as a second year.