

Jiho Ro

Jiho Ro is a 20-year-old bass-baritone and academical clerk at New College, Oxford, where he is in his second year studying Classics. Originally from South Korea, Jiho moved to England at the age of 10 and began singing in his local school choir. He later attended Harrow School, where he sang in the chapel choir, of which he was head in his final year, and in the Byron Consort, the school's premier chamber choir. During his time at Harrow, he took part in a wide range of musical opportunities, including performances at St Paul's Cathedral and the Royal Albert Hall, as well as international tours with the Byron Consort to Moscow and Seville. At Oxford, alongside the choir's daily services, Jiho also sings with The News, the close harmony group made up of the academical clerks of New College Choir. He is currently taught singing by Bronwen Mills.
